Learn360 Content Available Through Moodle

Access Two Learning Sites with One Click

WOODBURY, N.Y. (April 23, 2010) – Learn360 (www.learn360.com), an interactive media-on-demand service for educators, announces the development of their new Moodle Module that will allow schools using Moodle to access Learn360 content with a single log-in to their Moodle account. The single sign on feature will seamlessly connect the open source management system with Learn360's subscription-based content, giving educators a more complete and diverse learning environment.

"The integration of Moodle in Learn360's portfolio of compatible learning management systems (LMS) is one more example of our ability to continue large scale growth while remaining flexible enough to accommodate the customized needs of our users," said Learn360 Vice President of Sales, Mike Kroening. "Allowing users to seamlessly tie their Moodle courses with high-quality Learn360 content, will greatly enhance their lessons promoting 21st century learning."

Moodle is an open source content management site that is designed to assist educators in creating, gathering and organizing lesson materials. Featuring a growing online community, the site promotes the development and sharing of educational resources, allowing teachers to create a digital classroom environment.

Learn360 provides customers with over 8,300 digital video titles and thousands of images, articles, audio files and podcasts. These trusted resources are provided by top educational publishers such as the Britannica Concise Encyclopedia (over 25,000 articles); AETV, which includes A&E, Biography and History Channel; Weston Woods, PBS, WGBH, Sunburst Visual Media, National Geographic, and thousands of audio files from Scholastic Audio, among many others.
